The Port of a Storm-Beaten Heart By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

Yesterday there was a storm at sea. A gale was blowing; the waters were being whipped into foaming mountains; the sky was gray; nature was weeping.

Today the smiling sun and the blue sky make the eafarer forget the perils of the day gone by. It is Nature's Resurrection. Yesterday was a storm in someone's heart. A dear one had gone to a foreign shore; two hearts were torn asunder; there seemed to be no hope, nor was there any light; and tears did flow from burning eyes. Today the heart bent down in grief finds new consolation, new hope and new inspiration. It is the Resurrection of a Soul. Easter-the port of a storm-beaten heart, Nature's Resurrection. -Christ is risen. Open wide the doors of your heart--let Love, Hope and Charity enter.
